Vital Forces in Current Events

By MORRIS E. SPEARE and WALTER B. NORRIS

United States Naval Academy

A book which complies with the new Uniform Entrance Requirements in English for "a collection of prose writings on matters of current interest." It is not merely a book of current events. It offers to students interesting and authoritative discussions of present-day problems and the principles that underlie a satisfactory solution of these problems. For:—

Each article presents a vital issue that is of real importance to America and the world.

Each article discusses fundamental ideas that are likely to hold through changing current events.

Each article is good literature, clear and interesting in structure and style.

Each article brings the student into contact with the opinion of a leading authority upon a subject of paramount interest.

The articles are grouped under eight heads, as follows:

I. The Meaning of America (5 articles).
II. National Resources and Activities (10 articles).
III. Some Problems of Readjustment (8 articles).
IV. Educational Aims and Values (4 articles).
V. The Essentials of World Peace (5 articles).
VI. The League of Nations (6 articles).
VII. Latin America and the Philippines (4 articles).
VIII. Understanding Other Nations (8 articles).
